THE DEMON ARCHITECT.

BY M. E. LOCKE.

Somewhere I have read a strange story,
Sent down from the ages of old:
It may be some monk in his cloister
This wonderful story has told.

So long it has been since I read it,
It looms indistinct to my mind;
It seems like a far distant echo
Born on by the whispering wind.

How once in Cologne the Archbishop
A mighty cathedral would raise,
That, reaching high into the heavens,
His greatness should silently praise.

The architect he had commissioned
Wrought many and many a plan,
Dreamed long over that which should make him

Eternally known unto man.

But long though he patiently labored
At last he was brought to despair;
No plan he could draw appeared worthy
Of project so vast and so rare.

One night as he sat by the river,
His head sadly leaned in his hand,
A demon approached behind him
And rapidly drew in the sand.

A vision of marvelous beauty
Was sketched on that treacherous sand—
A wonder of columns and arches,
And steeples of minarets grand.

But line after line the scene vanished
As fast as it ever had grown,
And back to the depths of his sorrow
The suffering artist was thrown.

On parchment the demon then drew it,
Which snatching, the architect ran,
And battling back his pursuer,
Triumphantly clung to the plan,

"Thy cunning shall profit thee nothing,"
The demon thus terribly swore,
And though the design may be finished,
Thy name shall be heard nevermore."

Long years had they tolled at that building,
When the architect mounted one day
High up on a tower to chisel
His name where forever 'twould stay.

But suddenly down fell the scaffold,
Before the good work was begun;
The days of his life had been numbered—
The course of his life had been run.

And, now that the labor is finished,
Nowhere in the world is it known
The name of the artist who fashioned
The beautiful church at Cologne.

A Deaf-Hunter's Politics.

During the war they had down in Florida a shrewd old fellow known as "Old Hunter." Everybody knew him. He was deaf as a post, and through his dealings and his shrewdness he managed completely to hide his sympathy for either during the war. It was suspected however, that he was with the confederates at heart.

Every means had been tried by the union officers to procure from him some admission of preference, but of no avail. When reduced to a corner, he never lacked an expedient to get himself out. But one day a union captain put a bet that he could trap him and get his secret. He accordingly went up to Hunter's and skirmished around but not one hint could he get. He would be deaf to all questions that were unpleasant, and the inquirer was baffled. At last there came two large bull-dogs into the store, fierce fellows, exactly alike.

"Fine dogs, those," yelled the inquisitor in his ear.

"Yes," was the reply.
"What are their names?" in the same loud tone.

"Wall," said the old man, "I call one Beanregard and 'tother McClellan."

"You do?" shouted the inquirer, "which one do you like the best?"

"Oh, wall, said he, with a twinkle in his eye, "both 'em is as ugly as the devil."

The captain paid the bet.

The next day he was drinking in Hunter's store, and, taking advantage of the old man's deafness, proposed a toast—

"Here's to old Hunter, the two-sided old villain; may he be kicked to death by mules, and his body be sunk in the sea a hundred fathoms deep. May no prayer be said over him, and may his blind soul wander rayless through all eternity."

The toast was drunk with great glee, in which the old man joined.

"The same to yourselves, gentlemen," said he, "the same to yourselves."

Of course he had not heard a word that was said!—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Man Who was Mixed.

"Really, but I hope you will excuse the intrusion," said a shabby-looking man, as the insurance agent looked up.

"You are excusable, sir. What did you wish?"

"Well—you—see—I'm a bit mixed. Was it Napoleon or Washington that crossed the Alps?"

"Napoleon of course."

"Just so—thanks, I was inclined that way myself, but yet I knew that General Washington was always scooting 'round and he might have taken it into his head to cross the Alps. Good day sir."

He passed down the hall thirty feet, and then returned, and protested:

"Say, don't think ill of me, but I am still mixed up—dreadfully mixed. Will you answer me one more question?"

"Yes."

"Was it Nero who commanded the sun to stand still?"

"No: it was Joshua.

"I had an idea that it was Joshua, but I didn't dare to put up money on it. Nero was always fiddling, around you know, and I had a dim idea that he might have taken a whack at the sun. Very much obliged to you, sir.

This time he went half-way down the stairs and returned on tip-toe. The agent looked up at him in the door, and sharply quierred:

"Well?"

"Mixed again!" pleaded the stranger. "Say, I want to ask you just one more question."

"Yes."

"Did you ever lend a man a dollar to help him on his way to Columbus to see his relatives."

"Never! you are thinking of old Diogenes. He used to shell out to every dead-beat that came along."

"Mixed again, by thunder!" the man muttered, and he passed down stairs.

Tell us not in mournful numbers life is but an empty dream, oyster stews, our sweethearts tell us, are next best to frozen cream. Let us all be up and doing, labor early, labor late for the necessary money—oysters cost two bits a plate.

A call—This, from your broker, generally means "more mud."

Instructing Females How to Put on Trousers.

The editor of the Elmira Free Press is a married man, or, at least, we suppose he is. In discussing the proposed reform in female dress, which is to thrust trousers (silk brocaded ones) upon the fair sex, he comes to the front with the following timely advice, which will doubtless be appreciated by our fair readers: "We have not," he says, "the slightest objection to the wearing of trousers on the part of the sex to which the gown properly belongs, but it is only fair to tell them what danger and discomforts they are inviting. Trousers, for instance, can not be put on by drawing them over the head. Neither can they be drawn on from the other extremity while the person designing to wear them sits on the floor. To properly draw on a pair of trousers requires dexterity, and a nice balancing on one foot; and at times even the most expert persons are apt to step on the disengaged vacuum which occupies the floor, while the other vacuum is being filled." The fair would-be wearers are also warned that trousers only extend to the waist, and are never buttoned around the neck, and that suspenders are crossed on the back.

A Swindler Disgraced.

There is a man in New York whose dinner could not have digested very well or afforded him much solid comfort. He dined at a hotel and took his meal in good style. After laying in a liberal supply of what he fancied and running up a substantial account, his check was handed to him. Instead of paying the amount marked on it he furtively put it in his pocket and attempted to pass out the door in an unconcerned manner without bestowing the customary attention on the official who sits at the receipt of custom. Had the greedy and well-fed person been mindful of the fact that two detectives are kept constantly, lurking for just such patrons as himself his course would have been different. As it was, his passage to the street became a very different affair from what he had intended it to be. Instead of being allowed quietly to chuckle over having swindled the hotel out of the price of his dinner he was brought to a halt by one of the detectives and made to give an account of himself. His stammering apologies did him no good, and only served to stimulate his captor to make a conspicuous example of him. Calling to his aid another employe of the house, the detective caused the wretch to "walk Spanish" to the doorway, at which point he kicked him into the street amid the applause of the bystanders, who by this time were informed the why and wherefore of the transaction. In a demoralized manner the detected and disgraced "dinner out" landed on the pavement and slunk away with a view of reaching a place where the gaze of his fellow men would not be so conspicuously directed at him. It would have been quite as legal to have had this fellow arrested and convicted of swindling the hotel, but the moral effect of thus boosting him in to the street was far more impressive on the bystanders than a years imprisonment in jail would have been.—Philadelphia Times.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

SATURDAY EVENING, NOV. 26, 1881.

It has long been our intention to issue a daily, and one of the reasons that induced us to do it now was that we were unwilling that the Republican should have an opportunity to traduce our civilization and slander our people six times a week to our one opportunity of defending them.

Reduce the Taxes.

The payment upon the national debt the present year, we are told, will exceed $150,000,000. At this rate of reduction the entire debt will be wiped out in the short period of ten years. It is this vast amount of money that finds its way into the coffers of the government from duties on imports and internal taxes that causes the currency disturbances, now so frequent at the business centers. When the enormous drain of taxes has so curtailed the circulation as to embarrass the business of the country, the secretary of the Treasury has been forced, every now and then, to furnish currency for the necessities of trade in exchange for bonds. After while the currency has depleted again, and the same thing becomes necessary once more. If there was a reduction of taxation all this trouble would be at an end. A government that taxes its industries beyond its legitimate needs, is guilty of a crime. A great deal more money is collected by this government for the people than it has any need for. It is well known that the revenues largely exceed the actual or prospective necessities of the government, therefore a reduction of taxation cannot longer be delayed.

It is more than likely, however, that the protectionist influence in the approaching congress will be strong enough to prevent any substantial reduction of the number of dutiable articles on the tariff list. The part of wisdom then is to take the next best thing that can be obtained, and that is a total repeal of the revenue system. If anything else could be had it would, perhaps, be better, but since we cannot have the taxes taken off what we wear, our plows, the implements of trade, and very nearly all the comforts and luxuries of life, let the taxes come off of whisky and tobacco.

A mere reduction of the tax on whisky to a reasonable proportion to the cost would not serve the purpose, for the effect of such a reduction, by removing the temptation of fraud, would be to enhance the revenues, and thus increase the embarrassments and evils arising from an overgorged treasury. What is needed is the total discontinuance of the revenue system since the internal revenues are no longer required to supply the necessities of the government.

ARTHUR's civil service programme so far as developed, is about as satisfactory as Mr. R. B. Hayes'.

THE Courier-Journal and the Maysville Republican are engaged at the game "you tickle me and I'll tickle you." It is played with little paragraphs.

THE Republicans of Virginia, at the late election there, secured the Legislature but their members are mostly raw recruits, many of them being negroes, without experience or influence. It is believed that the intelligent Democratic minority in the Legislature will be able to check the most dangerous schemes of the Mahone Readjusters.

We added yesterday over one hundred names to our subscription list in Maysville. Thanks, friends.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Work on the Panama Canal has been suspended for the present.

Bill Jones was indicted for the attempt to kill Guiteau.

Wilhelm Busch, Surgeon General of the Prussian army from 1866 to 1870 is dead.

At Aurora, Ind., by the falling of a crane, Casper Bedoc had both legs crushed. He cannot live.

Friday afternoon at Sumter, S. C., John Davis, a negro, was hanged for the murder of Henry Johnson. He committed the deed to obtain Johnson's wife, by the advice of a Voodoo doctor who had promised he would escape.

Sang Armor, died on the scaffold at Crawfordsville, Ga., Friday, for the atrocious murder of Wm. Ellington, a white man.

Joe Harris was hanged at Rogersville, Tenn., for killing two men, Brown and Heck about a year ago.

At Lexington, S. C., squire Clark, condemned to hang was respite at the last moment.

The British ship Edgar came to anchor Friday, off the Delaware breakwater with her crew in a state of mutiny.

Guiteau passed Thanksgiving in his cell. Corkhill has made public the contents of the papers found on Guiteau. They are editorials from papers, relating to Conkling, Grant and Garfield and party feuds. The trial was resumed Friday morning, and began by Guiteau reading an address to the court, of not material interest. After a tilt between Scoville and Davidge, over the papers found on Guiteau, the prisoner said to the court he understood his divorced wife was in the court room, and if she came there to do him harm he would "rip up her character. There were some interesting things concerning her career in Philadelphia. She was a poor unfortunate thing and I never should have married her." A few witnesses were examined and the court adjourned.

W. R. Mims, of Wilcox county, Ala., committed suicide Friday, by pushing a hot hat down his throat.

Chifco, a noted Seminole Indian, who fought with Billy Bowlegs in the Seminole war died in Park county, Fla., on Friday.

Samuel Ellison, Morris Dunn, J. H. Ray and two other men, names not known, were killed at Greenwich, Conn., while blasting rock.

Keifer, Steiel & Co.'s tannery at Pittsburgh burned Friday. The loss is $125,000. This is the second time within a year it has been destroyed.

THE Daily Republican will have a correspondent at Frankfort during the session of the legislature—Republican.

We wonder if the correspondent will be the Hon. J. D. Kehoe, and we also wonder if the courtesy is extended in exchange for the Republican's influence with the Radical members of the legislature in the race for Public Printer.

THE Republican's childish whinings about the BULLETIN issuing a daily edition are in bad taste. It is a step we have long contemplated taking, and exercised our royal prerogative to do it now. We entertained the idea when the editor of the Republican, with his other hungry patriot associates, were taking their pop at Washington city, as a reward for their gallant services in "suppressing the rebellion." So it is not a new scheme. Don't cry, little boy, somebody may decide to take your paper after all.

Poor fellow, did some drear bid feller tread on its little toes? Bad man.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

SATURDAY EVENING NOV. 26, 1881.

Holiday Directory.

The following are dealers in holiday goods. We cordially recommend them to the patronage of our readers:

Miss Lou Powling, millinery, etc.
A. M. Rogers, boots, shoes, hats, etc.
John Wheeler, oysters, game and good things generally.
F. H. Traxel, the confectioner.

HECHINGER, THOMAS & Co. killed 450 hogs yesterday, making a total of 762 to date.

THE pupils of the public schools had two days holiday this week—Thursday and Friday.

HARRY TAYLOR and Henry Johnson, of the Washington Fire Company went to Cincinnati Thursday night to buy furniture for the opera house.

THE "Sunday Morning Call" is the name of a new weekly soon to be issued in this city by Mr. G. W. Oldham and Mr. T. J. Riley. It has the best wishes of the BULLETIN.

THE Republican not having a warranty deed to the city of Maysville, we take the liberty of saying there are plenty of home-made people here, capable of attending to some of its affairs.

THE DAILY BULLETIN is going to be "a permanent institution," and the subscription price is only six cents a week. It is not the "rival" of any paper because it is going to lead them all.

MR. STALEY THOMAS, a well-known and respected citizen of this county, living near Lewisburg, died Friday morning at 5 o'clock of disease of the heart. He was about eighty years of age.

THE ladies of Washington will give an oyster supper at the court house in that place December 7th for the benefit of the M. E. Church, South. The admission is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. No extra price will be charged for supper.

HOWARTH'S world renowned Hibernac Combination will appear in this city about the 15th of December. There will be startling life-like illustrations of the House of Commons with Parnell making his famous speech, the boycotting, the eviction, the sheriff's sale, midnight mass in the mountains in 1459, and other intensely interesting features. Bear it in mind.

PERSONAL.

Points About People here and Elsewhere.

Miss Pearl Redmond and Mr. Harry G. Redmond, called to see us.

Senator H. C. Bruce, of Vanceburg, was in Maysville this morning on his way to Frankfort.

A FEW FUNNY FACTS.

It is a fact:

That Maysville has a "January" all the year round.

That there is "Frost" here in summer as well as in winter.

That notwithstanding the above facts you can find "Greens" here at all seasons.

That there are several "Hills" within the city limits.

That are two "Marshes" in town, yet this is a healthy place.

That you can find "Crane's" here anytime of the year.

That the "Martin" are still in town as well as the "Finch-es" and "Robbins"

That Maysville has several "Kings" who all have a "crown."

That there are lots of "Dukes" in Maysville—yet this is a republican country.

That the town is well supplied with "Smiths"—black—"Smiths" as well as other kinds.

That you can find all the "Coopers" you want on Second street.

That Maysville seems to be a good place for "Miners"

That there are several female "Barbours" in the city.

That Market and Second streets seem to be a good place for "Woods."

That those who are thirsty can find "Wells" on Second street.

That "Green-wood" can be found on two streets in the city.

That the little boys can find several "Balls" in the city.

That you can still find several good "Holmes" in town.

That Second street is a good place to find "Gates." They would not be of much use, however, if they were hung.

That there are several "Adams" in town but no "Eves."

That the town is well supplied with "Mills" and "Millers."

That the city can boast of a "Bruer," although she no longer has a brewery.

That are still some "Hunters" and "Fishers" in the city.

That Maysville ought to be proud of her "Frank" people.

That there is still some "Pepper" in the city.

That "Coons" can be "caught" on Third street any day in the week.

That "A. Campbell" can be seen on Court street almost any day.

That we'll take it for "Grant"-ed that if the citizens of Maysville will have a little patience, they'll soon be "rid" of all their "Penny-wits."

That East Maysville has a "Bar," but a very good natured and much esteemed one.

That there are a number of "Crows" and "Foxes" and they are all Democrats, too.

Mr. Wm. Austin will call on our friends in East Maysville Monday in the interest of the DAILY BULLETIN.

GEORGE GRANT, son of Mr. Stephen Grant, who lives near Taylor's old mill, met with an accident, Friday morning, that came very near resulting fatally. He was hauling rock with a wagon, and in making a turn on the road the horses, wagon and all went over an embankment into North Fork. The horses were drowned, and Mr. Grant was only saved by the timely arrival on the spot of Mr. John Brodt, who helped him out of his perilous position. The horses were valued at $300.

RIVER INTELLIGENCE.

The river continues to fall.

The Condor passed up yesterday with empties for Pomeroy.

The Big Harry Brown passed up last evening for Pittsburg with twenty-four barges in tow.

A "Sea Lion" passed down the river this morning. Its owners were taking it to Cincinnati.

The United States inspectors at Cincinnati have condemned the Potomac, and another boat will be put in her place until the needed repairs are made or a new boat built.

The hull of the old Wildwood, which has been converted into a barge, sunk at Cincinnati Thursday.

The propeller, D. T. Lane, collided with the W. F. Gaylord at Ashland, Thursday night. The Gaylord sunk instantly, and the cook, Mrs. Elizabeth Mead, was drowned. Captain Lodwick was in the water an hour before he was rescued.

TO-DAY'S MARKETS.

The following are the market quotations up to noon to-day, telegraphed to the DAILY BULLETIN by Guthrie & Miller, 29 and 35 Pike's Opera House building, Cincinnati, O.:

CHICAGO.	$ 1 27
January wheat
" corn
" pork
" lard	11 42½

BALTIMORE. $1 40½

January wheat
" corn

NEW YORK. $1 41½
